Terms of Reference (ToR)

Background

The Maldives study on Women’s Health and Life Experiences (2007) shows that 1 in 3 women aged 15-49 years have experienced at least one form of physical or sexual violence or both during their lifetime. It also cites that 1 in 5 women aged 15-49, who had ever been in a relationship, reported experiencing physical and/or sexual violence by an intimate partner. Significant efforts have been put in place since then to address this issue through the establishment of Family Protection Authority (FPA) to oversee and coordinate response to GBV, some protection mechanisms and legislative reforms such as the Domestic Violence Prevention Act (2012) and Gender Equality Law (2016). Despite these positive steps, the lived reality for women still remains dire. Demographic Health Survey (2016) shows that 1 in 4 ever-partnered women has experienced physical and/or sexual violence from an intimate partner in their lifetime indicating an increase from 1 in 5 women in 2007. Emerging issues such as increasing religious extremism has aggravated the negative impacts on the gains made in the rights and empowerment of women. With increasing evidence pointing to an increase in violence, especially intimate partner violence, during periods of lockdown, this places vulnerable women in an environment of violence with no possible escape.

Reporting of GBV remained limited at first during the first weeks of the pandemic, however, reporting increased with the prolonging of the lockdown as well as other restrictions placed to prevent the spread of the infection. The Ministry of Gender, Family and Social Services has hotlines and social protection services established. A thorough analysis of the cases triangulated with key informant interviews and other relevant data can provide much needed information to shape the recovery and long term plans to prevent and respond to gender based violence. Moreover, the analysis will add to better understand the communication gaps and provide means to address them in the response to prevent GBV/DV.

Research questions on the impact of COVID19 that should be explored as a minimum are:
- Is there evidence for a change in the nature, forms or severity of reported violence?
- Is there an increase or decrease in service use?
- Are services being accessed and/or delivered and is this safe and effective?
- Nature of the challenges to service delivery during the pandemic, including communication on availability of services and referral pathways

This activity will be supported by the UNFPA Maldives.

Purpose

The purpose of this research is to create an evidence-based roadmap for reorienting of GBV/DV programme to encompass a human rights-based and survivor-centered approach. As such, the research will also inform the design and delivery of the national GBV response programme including the campaign to change public perceptions and attitudes towards GBV. This research will lead to achieving the specific objective of the programme which is that by 2023, women and young people will have improved access to GBV information and services and be able to counter myths and prejudices related to GBV.

Scope of work

The scope work includes the following:

III. Conducting Key Informant Interviews with stakeholders across different sectors and levels to determine the current services and communication gaps covering urban and rural settings;
